My Fair Lady, Lerner and Loewe’s 1956 musical adaptation of George Bernard Shaw’s Pygmalion, opens May 13, 2016 at RCCT and will run for two weekends, May 13-15 and May 20-22.

This beloved story of a cockney flower girl, Eliza Doolittle, seeking to advance her station in life under the direction of Professor Henry Higgins, has been called “the perfect musical.” While exquisitely lyrical, humorous and romantic, the play is also deeply revolutionary, leveling sharp social criticism at class and gender hierarchy in an ever-shrinking world. This complexity has been height-ened to an almost schizo-phrenic state through signifi-cant reinterpretation of the story since 1913, resulting in perpetual controversy among actors, directors and critics over how the play does, or perhaps should, end.

Shaw’s 1913 script for Pygmalion ends with an intense scene in which Eliza asserts her newfound power, leaving Higgins defeated by his own ambitions. Almost from the beginning, actors began adding a romantic twist to suggest that Higgins and Eliza’s relationship had blossomed into something more amorous.

When Pygmalion was first brought to film in 1938, this more marketable conclusion was made explicit with a new final scene showing Eliza returning to Higgins, surrendering to his ego with the somewhat ambiguous yet self-mocking line, “I washed my face and hands before I come, I did.” Although Shaw protested this romantic reinterpre-tation all along, even writing a sequel to clear things up, a traditional ‘happy’ ending is hard to beat. This is undoubt-edly why Lerner and Loewe retained the starry-eyed finale for My Fair Lady the musical.

An optimist might say that Eliza is taking the high road by returning to Higgins, that she can see past his flaws, that love conquers all. A realist, on the other hand, could easily feel defeated by such an ending. Has Eliza simply exchanged her prison in the gutter for the gilded cage of high society? You might be able to guess where my symp-thies lie. Yet, rather than taking it upon ourselves to an-swer these questions, RCCT’s production will attempt a bold new take on audience involve-ment by asking patrons to de-cide once and for all how the story should end.

Audience members will be invited to vote during each performance intermission on whether Eliza should stay with Higgins or go, and the actors will play the final scene ac-cordingly. With your help and a “little bit o’ luck” we will learn something about our-selves as we once again reimagine this timeless classic.
This column is usually written by Mike Marx, the President of our Board of Directors. As most of you know, Mike suffered a stroke recently, and is now in the recovery process. Mike has made valuable contributions to the theatre as an actor, director, sound and light technician, board member, and just about anything else that was needed. He is a businessman, an active member of the community, and a pillar to family and friends. We all anxiously await his return, and wish him the very best in his recovery.

Even though I’m not the President, as the co-owner of the theater building, perhaps I can clear up some questions regarding the future of the Community Theatre and the Rogers City Theater. My wife Mary Ann and I bought the theater building 13 years ago. We invested heavily in the building and the business to maintain its heritage and improve its physical structure. We built the stage, put in new theatrical lighting, new bathrooms, furnaces, installed new seats and state-of-the-art digital cinema equipment, rebuilt the original façade, and made other improvements. We have had tremendous support from the City of Rogers City, the greater community, and especially from our many faithful patrons.

In order to preserve the theater for future generations, Mary Ann and I are donating the theater building to the Presque Isle District Library. The Library Board is very committed to maintaining movies and live theatre, and to expanding its efforts to bring arts and culture to Presque Isle County. They have a dedicated and highly competent staff, including an enthusiastic new Library Director.

Through a lease agreement with the Rogers City Community Theatre, the Library is committed to making the theater building available to RCCT for four live theatre shows each year, just like we always do. Also, the Library Board has asked me to stay on to run the movies, concession stand, and ice cream shop for at least the next year, until they decide when and how to take over operations. In the meantime, the Library will continue to bring cultural events to the community at the theater. We think it’s a win-win-win situation, and we’re excited for the future!

“She will ask for your advice, your reply will be concise, she will listen very nicely then go out and do precisely what she wants.”

Can You Name That Song From My Fair Lady?

How’d They Do That?
Game’s Afoot: The Knife in Daria’s Back

At the end of Act 1 in Ken Ludwig’s play, The Game’s Afoot, Daria Chase is murdered in a matter of seconds with a knife stab to the back. So, what kind of magic theatre dust was sprinkled to create that illusion?

The magic was in Daria’s jacket. A section of wide flat curtain rod was used to create the illusion. Half the rod was secured inside a pocket created in the lining of the jacket. The handle of the knife was attached to the other half. At the proper time, the handle section was slid into the receiving rod section within the pocket and... voila! When Daria next appeared on stage, it looked like she’d really been stabbed in the back!

Wow! It's that time again. Summer is on its way so that can only mean one thing – Youth Theatre! This year's production, “Dear Edwina, Jr.” takes place in Michigan, so we're using Rogers City as our backdrop instead of Paw Paw. Dear Edwina is the story of Edwina Spoonapple, creator and star of The Dear Edwina Show. She and her friends produce the show from Edwina's garage. Edwina is a master of invaluable advice. Each week she and her friends answer letters from around the world. When Dr. Phil can't attend the big advice-a-palooza in Kalamazoo, a talent scout comes to the show to determine if Edwina will be invited to join the panel. Dear Edwina Jr. is a show-within-a-show, exploring the life of the characters. Edwina and friends share wisdom through the songs they sing as part of The Dear Edwina Show.

A variety of talent is needed for this show. There are singing and non-singing roles, with room for everyone to shine. There are also technical crew positions to fill. We need cheerleaders, a piano player, a drummer, a comedic ballerina, a pratfall artist able to fake a twisted ankle, letter readers with vocal solos, small ensembles, and a 'Greek chorus' of back-up singers. Can you sound like Count Dracula? We have a role for you! We even have a role for someone who speaks Spanish or can present a Spanish accent.

Some of the roles aren't gender-specific, but there are a number of roles that must be filled by boys. So, if you know of a young man who would benefit from learning (or learning more) about the theatre arts, please encourage him to be part of our show. We have a lot of fun while learning about responsibility, discipline, and being a team player.

All area youth age 8 to 17 are invited to participate. Auditions are Wednesday and Thursday, July 6 & 7, from 3 to 5 p.m. at the theater. Comfortable clothes and shoes are recommended. Bare feet, sandals, and flip flops are forbidden on stage. If you need an alternate audition time, please let me know. I will try to accommodate anyone's schedule who wants to be in the show. For more information, please call me (Donna Klein) at 989-306-3951 or email klein.donna.j@gmail.com. Information will be posted to our website, rcctheatre.org, and on our Facebook page as we get closer to auditions. –Donna Klein
